NAME OF PRESENTATION: STRATEGIES TO MAINTAIN MOMENTUM IN A MANAGEMENT SYSTEM AS THE ECONOMY GOES THROUGH A RECESSION

About the Author

Dudley has been working with the mining industry for the last fifteen years. He trained as a metallurgist with the University of Zimbabwe. He completed a Master of Business Administration with the same university in 2003. Besides his busy schedule, Dudley is currently studying for a Master of Engineering degree in Manufacturing Systems & Operations Management with the National University of Science & Technology in Zimbabwe.

Dudley is an aspiring auditor with a Zimbabwean based certification body. He has written a number of papers in the QMS field. His papers are mainly based on his experiences in leading companies working towards certification as well as maintaining the drive once companies have attained certification.

Dudley is married to Rudo and the two are blessed with a daughter and a son.

Abstract

The changing economies present a number of challenges to any organization. Besides the challenges associated with maintaining the market share and efforts to grow the business, compliance issues still need to be addressed. A case study approach has been taken to look at how some organizations have managed to maintain management systems in changing economies.
